greetings from the department of interior architecture
the university of north carolina at greensboro iarc has been a flutter with festivities this month and...

celebrated...

...6 decades of good design...

On April 30 and May 1, over 80 alums and their guests gathered in Greensboro to reunite and remember all of their wonderful times and hard work in IARc. Food, photo shoots, and memories brought alums, faculty, staff, and students together for this monumental event, commemorating IARc's long life and history at UNCG.

...talent and dedication...

The IARc department earned a quite a bit of recognition at the School of Human Environmental Sciences Honors Convocation. 25 outstanding IARc students received scholarships for the 2010-2011 school year.

Patrick Lee Lucas received the Spirit of J. Nancy White Faculty Award for his commitment to and engagement with students.
Jo Ramsay Leimenstoll was awarded the HES Research Excellence Award in recognition of her recent book, Thomas Day: Master Craftsman and Free Man of Color, and her work in creating sustainable historic district guidelines for Davidson, NC.

The Special Faculty Recognition Award was given to Tommy Lambeth for providing leadership to HES as the IARc department chair for ten years.

Patty Rowland received the HES Staff Excellence Award for her outstanding service and dedication to the IARc department.

The IARc department received the first ever HES Community Engaged Scholarship Award, recognizing the faculty, staff, and students for applying their expertise to community.

Ashely Boycher was recognized as the Outstanding IARc Graduate Student for this year.

Ashley Andrews received recognition as the Outstanding Senior in IARc for this year and as a Student of Excellence Award at the Honors Convocation.

Suzanne Cabrera was the keynote speaker at Nicholls State University’s Service-Learning On the Bayou Conference.

...the journey of a lifetime...

On April 26, the students who traveled to India with Tina Sarawgi and Tommy Lambeth displayed video, photos, and souvenirs from their spring break trip. Read and see more here and here.

...two architectural landmarks...

The first year students trekked up to Monticello and Fallingwater to witness some beautiful architecture, interiors, and landscapes. The trip offered the first years a chance to get out of studio and appreciate some wonderful works of design in great spring weather. Check out some of their sketches here!

...mother earth...

Students from IAR 331 celebrated Earth Day by displaying sustainable products and advice on sustainable lifestyles at the Earth Day Celebration in Foust Park. Read and see more here!

And, as always, stay informed on all of the exciting IARc happenings through the [i]blog!

Know of someone who should receive [i]news? Forward this edition on and let us know their e-mail so we can add them to our list. If you do not wish to receive the [i]news from the University of North Carolina at Greensboro Department of Interior Architecture, kindly let us know by return email and we’ll remove you from our distribution list.

[i]news is edited by claire keane (a graduate student in IARc) who gladly accepts all responsibilities for factual errors. send emails directly to her: clairekeane21@gmail.com, or call 704.621.0844.

date published : 6 May 2010

iarc on the web : www.uncg.edu/iar
the [i] blog : uncgiiarc.wordpress.com